

Table of Contents

Foreword	vii
Table of Figures	xiii
Abbreviations	xv
Glossary	xvii
I Introduction	1
1 Trials in and of Myanmar	1
2 The scope of the study	2
3 Contrasting images	5
4 Conceptualisation of a conflict set in a global context	7
5 Contingency and constancy	15
6 Design of the enquiry	16
II Setting the Stage – March to 18 September 1988	19
1 Introduction	19
2 “1988” in various perspectives	20
3 A note on the sources	23
4 Rough chronology of the events in 1988 leading to the seizure of power by the SLORC	25
5 On the logic of the events	31
6 Outlook – The genesis of an antagonism between the military and Suu Kyi	45
III Civilian-Military Relations in Burma up to 1988	51
1 Introduction	51
2 Professional armies, civilian leaders, military intervention	53
3 The Tatmadaw in Burma	57
4 Aung San	72
5 Factors influencing the civilian-military relations up to 1988	77
IV Ten Tense Months and First House Arrest: 18 September 1988 to 20 July 1989	83
1 Introduction	83
2 A multiplex chronology of events	83
3 Conflicting rhetoric communicated indirectly	98
4 On the logic of events	116

The Beast and the Beauty

V	The Law's Many Faces	121
1	Introduction	121
2	Law in society	125
3	The history of the legal system in Burma	126
4	Martial law	131
5	International law	137
6	Bringing crimes committed in Burma to court outside the country	139
7	The tradition of Burmese-Buddhist law	141
8	The Buddhist law and the conception of human rights	143
9	Law, order, justice, the time factor and a vicious circle	145
10	Concluding remarks	151
VI	Burma Goes Global, Myanmar Develops Its Own Agenda: July 1989 to July 1995	153
1	Introduction	153
2	Chronology	154
3	The elections of May 1990 and their aftermath	158
4	International developments	172
5	On the logic of events	190
VII	Noisy Silence and the Codifying of Fixed Standpoints	195
1	Introduction	195
2	Suu Kyi and her direct communication partners	195
3	Emphatic proclamation of a no-compromise attitude	197
4	The role of the mass media	200
5	Rigid perceptions of democracy and the consequence: a double bind communication	208
6	The other side: Paternalistic attitudes and a conspiracy theory	212
7	Sender-recipient relations	218
8	Effects of the meetings between SLORC representatives and Suu Kyi	225
9	Conclusion	226
VIII	Controlled Confrontation: July 1995 to September 2000	229
1	Introduction	229
2	Chronology of events	232
3	Some remarks on Suu Kyi's "release"	240

Table of Contents

4	Emergence of a symbolic alternative power centre	242
5	The 1998 stand-offs – a case study	253
6	An anti-climax and some final stand-offs	272
7	On the logic of events	274
IX	The Flexibility of a Steel Icon: Suu Kyi’s – and her Opponents’ – Iconography	277
1	Introduction	277
2	Theoretical background: a note on iconography	280
3	The background: iconography and conflict communication in Burma before 18 September 1988	284
4	Burma’s image in the international media before 1988	299
5	Constancy and variations in the portrayal of Suu Kyi vis-à-vis the military	301
6	Advertising freedom for Burma	333
7	Summary	341
8	Suu Kyi portrayed in novels and a film	350
9	Outlook	359
X	Interlude: Nineteen Months of Secret Diplomacy and Conciliatory Gestures	361
1	Introduction: Razali Ismail and a thaw	361
2	The context of secret diplomacy: a variety of crashes and clashes	363
3	Restrictions imposed on Suu Kyi	364
4	Gestures on the side of the SPDC	367
5	The NLD stance	369
6	Commentaries of Burmese exiles and solidarity groups	371
7	Reactions of other nations	372
8	On the logic of events	373
XI	Helpless Helpers – The Mediators’ Role	377
1	Introduction	377
2	Intervention prior to late 2000	377
3	Trust and mistrust in conflict transformation	392
4	Razali Ismail’s mission	398
5	Further initiatives	409
6	Summary	418

The Beast and the Beauty

XII The Collapse of an Unwritten Agreement: 6 May 2002 to 30 May 2003	421
1 Introduction	421
2 General events	423
3 Suu Kyi's travels	425
4 Evaluating the Depayin incident and antecedent events	440
5 Conclusions on the nature of the "unwritten agreement"	444
6 Speculations about motives	446
7 Summary	447
XIII Aung San's Long and Ambivalent Shadow	449
1 Introduction	449
2 Aung San as the mythical founder of a Burmese 'nation-to-be'	450
3 A note on the elections of 1947 and 1990	453
4 Reflections on the political concepts of father and daughter	454
5 Re-consecrating a country	456
6 Conclusions	458
XIV Back to Square One – For the Last Time: June 2003 – March 2011	461
1 Introduction	461
2 The policy of the SPDC	463
3 Suu Kyi and the NLD	473
4 Conclusions	479
XV Evaluating a Period of Transition	483
1 Introduction	483
2 Contextualising Myanmar's transition to some type of democracy	484
3 Stages of transition	491
4 Looking beyond the transfer of power	496
Epilogue: Moving beyond a Fairy Tale	505
1 The magic of turning things around	505
2 Recent works	507
Bibliography	511
Index	525